Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours, a sediment or setting indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

THE BOER'S RELIGION.

FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH—THE FUNERAL OF A NATION.

FROM A CONTRIBUTION BY ALLEN SANGREE, SON OF REV. M. H. SANGREE, FORMERLY OF ARENDTSVILLE, THIS COUNTY, TO THE Reformed Church Messenger.

Every outsider that followed in person the fortunes of the Boer army was mightily interested in the rugged and simple religious faith that characterizes those mighty guardians of the old Dutch Reformed religion. Whether at home on furlough or enveloped in the hell of English lyddite they never for one moment ceased to believe that God protected them and would eventually pilot them safely and triumphantly to freedom.

To those of other lands and creeds, tinged more or less with latter day agnosticism, this unbending faith in a Supreme Being was a revelation and constant source of wonder. Not one but was convinced of their sincerity, and whether or not he sympathized with this intense piety the foreigner was bound to acknowledge that it cloaked no hypocrisy.

Contrary to a general impression spread by English writers one may not class the Boers under the head of fanatics. Their religion is not of a kind to foster acts of cruelty or wild and exaggerated deeds. They simply believe in the Bible as they do in the virtue of a good rifle and accept its precepts much as one would change from an honest grocer—never question the accuracy.

That man has descended from a monkey and is distantly related to the oyster would be put aside by them as too frivolous for consideration. Once, I believe, Mr. Kruger overheard some learned Hollanders discussing the Darwinian theory and approached them in utter amazement. It was the first and only time he ever heard it mentioned. "Why," he exclaimed, partly in anger, "if your theory were true I might as well throw my Bible away. However," he continued as his eye twinkled in sarcastic mirth, "I believe you do look like a monkey when you say that, although a monkey would know better than to talk such nonsense."

The only uncommon feature of the Boer religion, therefore, is that it retains all the original simplicity and vigor that Luther and Calvin knew: it is quite bereft of all scepticism. The rights and methods practiced are, accordingly, such as prevailed in the Reformed church in this country years ago and those whose memory embraces several generations would be delighted in witnessing them. Two weeks before Lord Roberts came pounding at the gates of Pretoria with 120 cannon, I attended a lively meeting in Oom Paul's old Dopper church to hear a discussion on the advisability of having a choir. President Kruger, as the keystone of the Conservative church party, strenuously objected, declaring in a storm of wrath, that a choir was a frivolous thing and would make his house of worship look like a "music hall." The younger element, however, opposed him just as vigorously and would have carried the day had not the meeting been interrupted by a courier to say that the English were closing in on Johannesburg.

Kruger and his fellow Doppers never sanctioned singing in church, though they joined in on the battle-fields, and their services were confined entirely to preaching and praying, and it was certainly a test of devotion to sit through a meeting. It recalled early days to see the men and women closely adhere to the custom of occupying different sides of the church and occasionally note the threatening glance of a venerable elder as a young man attempted to sidle up toward the forbidden precinct; lured by the mischievous eye of an attractive maid.

The champion of the more liberal party, to which General Joubert belonged, was the Rev. Mr. Bosman, known widely as "The Fighting Clergyman." When hostilities began Mr. Bosman had not returned from America, where he came to examine the system of orphan asylums with a view to establishing several in the Transvaal. He hurried south quickly as possible and reached Cape Town only to be arrested by the British authorities, who, however, did not dare put him in jail. Bosman informed them that he would take the first chance to escape and it was not long before he appeared in Pretoria.

A man of progressive spirit, extensive learning and so imbued with patriotism that when he landed in America and trod the free earth, tears rushed to his eyes. Rev. Bosman's arrival acted straightway as a stimulus for greater effort on the part of his countrymen and in addition to being of such upright and honorable character that in thirty years neither Boer nor Uitlander had been able to reproach him, Bosman was entirely fearless, and the Sunday after Roberts entered Pretoria he arose in the pulpit, though threatened with instant arrest, and in most appaling terms arraigned the conquering army. He called down God's wrath upon the host collectively and individually and urged men, women and children to fight until none were left.

"Let the enemy send their 250,000 hired assassins to murder us," he preached. "But do not give up. Go in and fight to the end or if that is best bury your rifles and await your opportunity. In the end we shall conquer by God's help, for He will not let them prosper. You must not let your heart turn from freedom. Now I know that Roberts has sent spies here, for I can see them and I'm glad of it. Go back and tell your master all I have said. Repeat it word for word and say that I will continue to preach liberty until my tongue shall cleave to the roof of my mouth. As for you, my dear friends, if I am put in prison, remember well what I say and do not go the enemy. Let us fight so long as we have a breath and remain Afrikanders!"

Strange to say, Lord Roberts clapped in jail every other clergyman excepting Bosman, and when I left he was still declaiming openly against the English and encouraging his people. He did more than preach, however, for during the war he spent five days each week in going from house to house through the country-side, giving accurate information of the killed and wounded and comforting those who mourned a son or a husband. On Friday he would return to Pretoria to hold services and Monday would again find him in the saddle going his rounds.

The Boers are not a demonstrative people, but their silent grief over the burial of some loved friend or relative was pathetic in the extreme. Nearly the whole city turned out at the funeral of Johnny Nilmeyer and Sampie Van Zyle, both brilliant young professional men, of whom Pretoria was justly proud. These two patriots met their death in the ghastly hand-to-hand fight on Gun Hill, where one dozen Pretorians were attacked by an English regiment of the line, just after 12 o'clock on a cold, drizzling night in January. They were completely surrounded, but refused to surrender, and every one fell at the point of the bayonet. The bodies were found next lay so terribly mutilated that they could hardly be recognized. Johnny Nilmeyer had first been shot through the breast and then stabbed seven times in the breast and face, while Van Zyle bore the marks of six bayonet thrusts. Any one would have been sufficient to kill him.

As was the case with most Pretorians, Mr. Bosman had married their parents, christened them, taught them all the religion they knew and in this instance he had married the two boys and christened their first-born. He accordingly preached the sermon, and while I could not fully appreciate the eloquence, being delivered in Dutch, it seemed, by the effect produced, that a more sublime eulogy had never been delivered. Few tears were shed, even by the youthful widows who sat near the mangled remains, but the swift flashes of terrible wrath that glinted from eye to eye among the hundreds of uncouth and bearded riflemen, spoke of a hatred for the foe that can never die.

One gets an insight to this feeling in all parts of South Africa, for it is worthy of note that the English colonist dislikes the conqueror brute little less than the Boer himself. Everywhere you hear mutterings of discontent over the outrages perpetrated by British soldiers, and to judge from this general sentiment England will never have the lower part of the Dark Continent for a colony such as Canada. There is too great an infusion of foreign blood in the country to ever effect a welding such as transpired between the North and South, and it is not at all unlikely that the present generation will live to see a United States of South Africa.

The Boer has been subdued, but not conquered, and only awaits an opportunity to throw off the yoke. A mighty nation has swamped and submerged the Transvaaler by sheer press of numbers, but has only intensified a hatred that is now instilled in the Boer children.

"Do you believe that a married man lives longer than a single one?"

"Well, I don't know," replied Mr. Neuwed. "I lived longer before I was married than I have since."—Illustrated Bits.

SUPERINTENDENT—"Yes, and where did John the Baptist live?"

Scholar—"In the desert."

"Quite right. And what do we call people who live in the deserts?"

"Deserters."—Credit Lost.

JUSTICE—"What were you doing in Colonel Pullet's chicken coop?"

Uncle Mose—"Fo' de Lord, judge, I was jest takin' de census."—Harlem Life.

"WHAT are you nosing around that Atlantic cable for?" said the lobster to the bluefish.

"Oh," said the latter, non-chalantly, "merely picking up a few ocean currents."—Detroit Free Press.

How We Use Up Our Forests.

It is estimated that it takes twenty-two acres of spruce land to furnish enough wood pulp paper to run a large metropolitan daily just two days. The writer who makes this statement deplores the time, when, at this rate, our forests will entirely disappear, and paper be very scarce and expensive. Meantime, the art of printing continues, because there are many truths the world should know; among others, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a cure for diseases of the stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, insomnia and nervousness. This famous medicine has been the standard remedy of the American people for fifty years. Do not accept a substitute. The genuine has a Private Revenue Stamp over the neck of bottle.

TREACHERY

A persistent cough is at first a friend, for it gives warning of the approach of a deadly enemy. Heed the warning before it is too late, before your lungs become inflamed, before the doctor says, "Consumption." When the danger signal first appears, help nature with

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Don't delay until your lungs are sore and your cold settled down deep in your chest. Kill the enemy before the deadly blow kills you. Cure your cough today.

One dose brings relief. A few doses make the cure complete.

Three sizes: 25c. for an ordinary cold; 50c. for the harder colds; $1.00 the most economical for older cases.

"I consider your Cherry Pectoral the best remedy for colds and coughs and all throat affections. I have used it for 30 years and it certainly beats them all."
D. R. LUMNEY,
Dec. 20, 1898. Union, N. Y.

THANKSGIVING.

For the bounty of the sky,
For the blessing of the rain,
For all happy winds that fly,
Over waving hill and plain,
For the sunshine falling soft
Where the vital seed was sown,
Rise our grateful songs aloft,
Praises be to God alone!

Fruitage of the orchard tree,
Clusters of the fragrant vine,
Treasures of the tidal sea,
Treasures of the gloomy mine,
Wondrous harvest of the wheat,
Golden sheaves of ripened corn,
For these gifts unto thy feet,
Lord, our grateful thanks are borne.

For our ships that cross the wave,
Carrying the great world's bread,
For our sailors, strong and brave,
Facing danger, scorning dread,
For thy word to lands afar,
Wafted o'er the billows free,
Safely borne 'neath sun and star,
Lord, we render praise to thee.

For our happy homes that lie,
Guarded by our oceans vast,
Sheltered underneath thy eye,
Standing ever firm and fast,
For the love of leal and true,
Voice of mother, lisp of child,
Thanks our grateful hearts renew:
Heaven upon our land hath smiled.

Laud and praise to God Most High,
King upon an endless throne;
Praises rise from earth and sky,
We but give thee of thine own.
Lord, of angel hosts adored,
We, thy ransomed children, bring
Choral hymns, O gracious Lord,
Bend and hear us, as we sing.

—MARGARET E. SANGSTER, in Forward.

HOW THANKSGIVING IS PROCLAIMED.

WHEN Governor Bradford issued the first Thanksgiving proclamation to our Pilgrim Fathers, on November 19, 1621, there was very little ceremony attending the act. He simply announced that as they had just gathered abundant harvests of grain and the cold weather had sent plenty of game to their forests, December 13, 1621 would be observed throughout the Plymouth Colony as a day of Thanksgiving; and he accordingly appointed four men to "go fowling, that they might after a more special manner rejoice together."

This was not an elaborate proclamation in comparison with many that have followed. But during the many decades that have passed since then formality has been added to formality in giving the document to the public, until in all probability few American citizens realize what high ceremonies attend the issuance of the proclamation of to-day. It seems a very simple matter to send out the few words contained in the short newspaper paragraph early in November announcing the same well-known fact that has been regularly announced each year since 1863, that the last Thursday in November is set aside as a day of public thanksgiving and a general holiday. Those who study for the first time the elaborate details of this proclamation, fixing "Thanksgiving Day"—as it has come to be known—are surprised to learn of the yearly ceremony required before applying the Great Seal, and making the copies that are to be sent to the different governors of the States and Territories.

This making of the Thanksgiving Day proclamation is a serious duty for the President. The Chief Executive who would say anything new, or who would say an old thing in a new way, finds before him a task that must require much cudgeling of the brain, inasmuch as the same subject has been written upon annually for years and years, and all the reasons for giving thanks seem to be enumerated and fitting words made use of. We are told that it is customary with him to write this proclamation with his own hand, and to put into it as much of the spirit of the day as possible. President Harrison used to take a pencil and pad of paper and write out the proclamation in full. Then he would turn it over to one of the executive clerks to be copied. He preferred to use his pencil rather than to dictate, but both the Presidents who have followed him prefer to take advantage of a stenographer, and if the mere dictation of the proclamation was all that was required it would not take long to announce the annual celebration.

Composing and dictating the proclamation, however, is a very small part of the labor and ceremony connected with its issuance, according to various accounts given from headquarters at Washington. The first draft of the proclamation is copied, and the copy is sent to the State Department. There are two or three clerks in the State Department who make a specialty of penmanship

GETTYSBURG FIELD.

THE NATION'S MEMORIAL OF VALOR OF UNION ARMY.

State Tributes to the Dead—History of the Work of Preserving the Historic Battle-field, with Some Account of the Great Battle Itself.

The following is part of an article written recently by General C. H. T. Collis, of New York, for the New York Mail and Express. Gen. Collis is the owner of "Red Patch," his summer home, near Gettysburg, and is a frequent visitor here:

BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG.

It was in the summer of 1863 that the victorious Confederates, under Gen Robert E. Lee, having defeated the Army of the Potomac at Chancellorsville on May 3d, triumphantly marched across the State of Maryland and invaded Pennsylvania, determined to seize Harrisburg, Baltimore and Washington, and end the war. The Northern army, much crippled and disheartened at its defeat, was lying inactive in the vicinity of Fredericksburg, Va., its leaders debating whether to follow Lee or go south and capture Richmond. Gen. Hooker was disposed to adopt the latter course, but Abraham Lincoln, with that wonderful common sense which was so characteristic of him, wrote to Hooker, advising but not instructing, that he should follow Lee and offer him battle whenever and wherever he could find him. Accordingly, Hooker marched his army to the north in close pursuit of the Confederates.

Owing to a difference of opinion between Hooker and Gen. Halleck as to the advisability of denuding Harper's Ferry of its garrison and sending these troops to reinforce the Army of the Potomac, Gen. Hooker resigned his command and was succeeded on the last day of June by Major-Gen. George G. Meade, who was then commanding the Fifth Corps. Meade continued the movement northward as planned by Hooker, and on the succeeding day one of his corps (the 1st) commanded by Gen. Reynolds, came into collision with the Southern army at Gettysburg, Pa., after a brilliant engagement by the cavalry advance, under Gen. Buford.

DEATH OF REYNOLDS.

Reynolds was unfortunately killed before the battle had waged an hour, and was well succeeded by Gen. Doubleday; and the position he had selected for his troops on Seminary Ridge was so excellently chosen that they successfully withstood the onslaught of one-half the Confederate army until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At this hour the First Corps and a part of the Eleventh, which had come to its assistance late in the day, were driven from the field, through the town of Gettysburg to the village graveyard on an eminence on the south side of the town, now to be known as Cemetery Ridge.

Here the stampede was checked by a line of earthworks erected by Gen O. O. Howard, in which he had placed Steinwehr's division, and by the timely arrival of Gen. Winfield S. Hancock, who, under instructions from Gen. Meade, had been sent forward to ascertain and report whether Gettysburg was a good place to fight a battle, or whether it would be better that the army should fall back to a position on Pipe Creek, twenty miles in the rear. Hancock promptly decided in favor of remaining in Gettysburg and fighting it out, and so reported to Gen. Meade, who hurried up his troops to Gettysburg and accompanied them in person.

On the morning of the second of July the Army of the Potomac, consisting of the First, Second, Eleventh and Twelfth corps, commanded respectively by Newton, Hancock, Howard and Slocum, was entrenched on Cemetery Hill; on the right, extending from the graveyard along Culp's Hill to Spangler's Spring, and on the left through Ziegler's Grove toward Little Round-Top Mountain. The Third, Fifth and Sixth corps were still upon the march, the Third arriving on the ground in the forenoon, the Fifth early in the afternoon, and the Sixth late in the evening. The cavalry, under Gen. Pleasanton, unfortunately for some reason which has never yet been explained, had been detached from the army and sent to the rear.

LEE'S LOST OPPORTUNITY.

It is the belief of every educated soldier of the present day, and by a large majority of the veterans who still survive, that had Gen. Lee followed up the success of the first day the battle of Gettysburg would have resulted in a Southern victory and the Army of the Potomac would once more have been compelled to retire toward Washington.

On the afternoon of the second of July Gen. Longstreet, with nearly one-half of the Southern army, made a vigorous assault upon the left of the Union line, which was defended by Gen. Sickles, commanding the Third Corps, who advanced his troops to the front to secure a better position from which to meet the attack. At the same time Gen. Ewell, of the Southern army, vigorously attacked the Union troops on Culp's Hill, but was repulsed. Longstreet, however, with his overwhelming force drove Sickles, after a severe contest, lasting for over two hours, back to his original line,

ROYAL
The Absolutely Pure

is the baking powder of general use, its sale exceeding that of all other baking powders combined.

Royal Baking Powder has not its counterpart at home or abroad. Its qualities, which make the bread more healthful and the cake of finer appearance and flavor, are peculiar to itself and are not constituent in other leavening agents.

Great efforts are made to sell alum baking powders under the plea that they are so many cents a pound cheaper than Royal. The admission that they are cheaper made is an admission that they are inferior. But alum powders contain a corrosive poison and should not be used in food, no matter how cheap.

THE STATE'S POPULATION

Total Number of Inhabitants is Now 6,302,115—Increase Over a Million

The complete census returns for the State of Pennsylvania were made public last Monday afternoon, showing that the population of the State is 6,302,115 an increase of 1,044,101 or 19.8 per cent over the population in 1890 when the total was [illegible]

Adams county has 34,496 against 33,486 in 1890 an increase of 1,010

The bulletin gives the population of the State by counties but not by boroughs The latter will not be made known for some time yet

The population by counties for 1900 is as follows

[illegible]

This table compared with the county returns in 1890 shows that 16 counties in the State have lost in population during the decade These counties and their decrease in population are as follows

Cameron, from 7,238 in 1890 to 7,048 this year, Center from 4[illegible] to 4[illegible], [illegible] from 3[illegible] to 34,2[illegible], Crawford [illegible], Fulton from 10,1[illegible] to [illegible] Greene from 28,935 to 28,[illegible], Huntingdon from 35,751 to 34,6[illegible], Juniata from [illegible] to 16,054 Montour [illegible], Perry from [illegible], Pike from [illegible] to 8,766, Snyder from [illegible] to 17,[illegible] Susquehanna [illegible] to 40,[illegible] Tioga from [illegible] Union from [illegible] to 17,[illegible] Wayne from [illegible]

BAND BENEFIT

"St [illegible]" or "Master and Men," a comedy drama in four acts, was well presented by the Xavier Dramatic Society in Xavier Hall last Friday evening before a large and enthusiastic audience [illegible]

As has been announced heretofore the play was for the benefit of the G A Band, the proceeds to be used to liquidate the indebtedness still remaining upon the new instruments purchased As is usually the case, when the cause is a just one the people of town turned out in force and this no doubt encouraged the participants to put forth their best efforts

The singing between the acts by the young ladies and gentlemen of the school was much enjoyed

A number of lively and well played pieces by the band kept the audience in a good humor

The cast of characters follows

[illegible]

The net proceeds of the entertainment [illegible] was turned over to the band The indebtedness on the instruments amounted to $[illegible] thus leaving a balance of $10 13 in the hands of the treasurer

The band, under the leadership of S A Troxell, has made rapid strides during the past summer and proven itself worthy of the support of our people

Grand Jury's Report.

To the Court of Quarter Sessions of Adams County We the members of the Grand Jury respectfully submit the following report

We have passed on sixteen bills four ten of which we returned as true bills and two were ignored

We have visited the Alms house and Jail and find everything in as good condition as circumstances will permit We find the Old Women's home over crowded and the ventilation of the same inadequate The attention of the authorities is directed to the fact that the dining room of the Insane Department is too small and should be enlarged Under the crowded condition of the institution we call the attention of the authorities to the importance of thorough ventilation, especially in the Old Men's Department

We return our thanks to the Court and District Attorney for courtesies extended

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

THE FORTY-SIXTH ANNUAL SESSION OF THE ADAMS COUNTY TEACHERS INSTITUTE BEING HELD IN XAVIER HALL

The exercises incident to the Teachers' Institute began yesterday afternoon in Xavier Hall at 1 30 o'clock, when 19[illegible] teachers of the 194 in the county and many friends of education were present.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev A R Steck, pastor of St James Lutheran church.

The address of welcome was delivered by Dr H W McKnight, President of Pennsylvania College, who said in part:

"There is a two fold fitness in my speaking to you words of sincere and grateful welcome. There is, first, an intimate and inseparable connection between your work and mine. The school is the necessary forerunner of the College, and should naturally lead up to it. The College, in turn does but continue the work of the school and emphasize its importance.

"But, I have a more personal reason for speaking these words of welcome with feelings of unusual and unfeigned cordiality and gratitude. I myself was a pupil in two of the schools of Adams county—in [illegible]'s school till my eleventh year and in the Arendtsville school during my twelfth year. I am thus indebted to the work which has come down to you as a sacred trust for my earliest intellectual training."

In speaking of the teachers he said: "It is the personality of the teacher, his or her mental equipment, aim, enthusiasm and character which tell more than material betterments and new methods. The men behind the guns more than the guns themselves of the armored ships which carried them, won the victories of Manila and Santiago, and so the men and women behind the teachers' desk, more than temples of science and superior appliances must lift our school work to higher and still higher efficiency and success."

"We welcome you for your work's sake. We wish you, in your annual Institute, such pleasure and profit as will enable you to return to your work and to love with it and so appreciating its far reaching influence and importance that you may catch something of the pure and intense enthusiasm of your Lord the model Teacher, who could say: 'It is more than my meat and drink to do the will of him that sent me and to finish his work.'"

The response in behalf of the teachers was ably delivered by Mr W C Storrick, of Straban township.

Mr Storrick's remarks and Dr McKnight's address will appear in full in our next issue.

COLLEGE MUSICAL CLUBS.

Brua Chapel was well filled Saturday evening by lovers of music, the occasion being the first appearance of the Gettysburg College Musical Clubs. It was said by many present that the concert was the best ever given by the clubs.

The Mandolin and Guitar Club selections were well rendered and much appreciated by the audience, as was shown by the repeated encores.

The Glee Club, under leader Shoup, sang a number of selections and held the closest attention throughout.

Perhaps the greatest hit of the evening was made by Byron W Dickson, who delighted the audience by singing a number of the latest 'coon songs.'

"DIRT IN THE HOUSE BUILDS THE HIGHWAY TO BEGGARY." BE WISE IN TIME AND USE
SAPOLIO

When the Hair Falls Out accompanied by mucous patches in the mouth, eruptions on the skin, sore throat, copper colored splotches, swollen glands, aching muscles and bones, the disease is making rapid headway, and far worse symptoms will follow unless the blood is promptly and effectually cleansed of this violent destructive poison.

S S S is the only safe and infallible cure for this disease, the only antidote for this specific poison. It cures the worst cases thoroughly and permanently.

My Condition Could Have Been No Worse. In the fall of 1897 I contracted Blood Poison. I tried three doctors but their treatment did me no good. I was getting worse all the time; my hair came out, ulcers appeared in my throat and mouth, my body was almost covered with copper colored splotches and offensive sores. I suffered severely from rheumatic pains in my shoulders and arms. My condition could have been no worse; only those afflicted as I was can understand my sufferings. I had about lost all hope of ever being well again when I decided to try S S S, but must confess I had little faith left in any medicine. After taking the third bottle I noticed a change in my condition. This was truly encouraging, and I determined to give S S S a thorough trial. From that time on the improvement was rapid. S S S seemed to have the disease completely under control; the sores and ulcers healed and I was soon free from all signs of the disorder. I have been strong and healthy ever since.

One of these engrosses the proclamation on parchment artistically. The parchment is then sent back to the White House to receive the President's signature, and it is then taken back to the State Department where the Secretary of State's signature attests that of the President. Then the Great Seal of the State Department is affixed.

This is a very great seal. It [illegible] to be, for it was [illegible] by one of the most prominent jewelers in the country and cost the government one thousand dollars. It is kept in a rosewood case in the Bureau of Commissions and Pardons and the late George Bartle, who for over fifty years was in the state department, was long its custodian. Bartle was appointed to a clerkship by Daniel Webster and for a long time had the distinction of being one of the oldest employes of the government in Washington.

It takes an order from the President of the United States to secure an impression of the Great Seal of State. Collectors of seals and autographs frequently write to the Secretary of State for copies of the Seal of State. The same for many people is [illegible] —but under the law no impressions of the seal can go out of the Department unless it is affixed to [illegible] the President of the United States [illegible] authority to a collector to obtain an impression of the seal but no President has ever done so. The law of 1789 says that the seal shall not be affixed to any instrument except a commission without a special warrant of the President therefor. The President, therefore, [illegible] sends a Thanksgiving proclamation to the State Department for the seal, sends with it a copy of the following printed form duly filled out and signed:

I hereby authorize and direct the Secretary of State to cause the Seal of the United States to be affixed to ———, dated this day and signed by me, and for so doing this shall be his warrant.

When the Secretary of State receives this order he unlocks the rosewood case, puts a scalloped circle of paper in the press, and with a light turn of the heavy steel ball brings the seal down upon the paper and leaves its impress there. Then the stamped piece of paper is fastened to the proclamation and it is ready to go to all the world. It is necessary for the custodian to be very cautious in the exercise of his duties, and he not infrequently has controversies with people who are in a hurry for public documents, and who do not understand why the State Department has not authority under the general law to affix the Great Seal to any document not bearing the President's signature.

When the proclamation has been completed by the addition of the seal, clerks of the State Department set to work making copies for transmission to the governors of the States and Territories. These copies are not made on typewriters, nor with the hectograph, nor by any other process of duplication. The State Department uses the typewriter for some purposes, [illegible]. All of the copies of the proclamation are written out on long sheets of blue paper which [illegible] for official correspondence. Each governor who receives a copy of the President's [illegible] proclamation [illegible] his own. [illegible] to the [illegible] proclamation [illegible] President has been [illegible] public, and the people all over the country know what day has been chosen for Thanksgiving.

The first Thanksgiving Day proclamation ever issued by a President was signed by George Washington in 1789. The original is said to be in possession of Rev J W W Wellman, who inherited it from his grandfather William Ripley of Cornish, New Hampshire. This proclamation was issued by request of both Houses of Congress through their joint committee. The text of the proclamation, following the preamble, is:

"Now therefore I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these States to the service of that great and glorious Being, who is the beneficent author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be. That we may then all unite in rendering unto Him our sincere and humble thanks for His kind care and protection of the people of this country previous to their becoming a nation, for the signal and manifold mercies and the favorable interpositions of His providence in the course and conclusion of the late war, for the great degree of tranquility, union and plenty which we have since enjoyed, for the peaceable and rational manner in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government for our safety and happiness and particularly the national one now lately instituted, for the civil and religious liberty with which we are blessed and the means we have of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge, and, in general, for all the great favors which He hath been pleased to confer upon us.

"And also that we may then unite in most humbly offering our prayers and supplications to the great Lord and Ruler of Nations and beseech Him to pardon our national and other transgressions; to enable us all, whether public or private stations, to perform our several and relative duties properly and punctually; to render our National Government a blessing to the people by constantly being a government of wise, just and constitutional laws, directly and faithfully executed and obeyed; to protect and guide all sovereigns and nations (especially such as have shown kindness to us) and to bless them with good government, peace and concord; to promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue and the increase of science among them and us, and generally to grant unto all mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as He alone knows to be best.

"Given under my hand at the city of New York, the third day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty nine.

The Thanksgiving proclamations issued since the time of George Washington have usually been less elaborate, but the ceremony of preparing, sealing, copying and sending out the proclamations continues the same from year to year and only those who have had opportunity to study the subject realize what a complicated process is carried out before the various governors of the different states and territories can proclaim to the people a fact that has already been taken for granted, because of its yearly repetition.—The Woman's Home Companion.

Pretty Children

"We have three children. Before the birth of the last one my wife used four bottles of MOTHER'S FRIEND. If you had the pictures of our children, you could see at a glance that the last one is healthiest, prettiest and finest-looking of them all. My wife thinks Mother's Friend is the greatest and grandest remedy in the world for expectant mothers."—Written by a Kentucky Attorney-at-Law.

MOTHER'S FRIEND prevents nine-tenths of the suffering incident to childbirth. The coming mother's disposition and temper remain unruffled throughout the ordeal, because this relaxing, penetrating liniment relieves the usual distress. A good-natured mother is pretty sure to have a good-natured child. The patient is kept in a strong, healthy condition, which the child also inherits. Mother's Friend takes a wife through the crisis quickly and almost painlessly. It assists in her rapid recovery, and wards off the dangers that so often follow delivery.

Sickles being severely wounded in the engagement and carried from the field. The entire Fifth Corps and part of the Sixth, which had fortunately just arrived, participated in this engagement on the Union left.

FOUGHT ON DEFENSIVE

Thus at the close of the two days' fighting the Union army still held Cemetery Ridge, although to do so had cost more than 2,500 in killed and between ten and twelve thousand in wounded. At a council of war, called by Gen Meade on the night of the second, it was determined to remain at Gettysburg and fight it out, but to act entirely on the defensive. Finding that Meade was not disposed to attack, Gen Lee, at about 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the third day, made an assault on the center of the Union line with Pickett's division of fresh troops, supported by three other divisions, all under the command of Gen Longstreet. In this engagement over 100 pieces of artillery were employed on both sides, and the assaulting column numbered about 15,000 infantry.

The troops debouched from the woods on Seminary Ridge and marched over the open plain across the Emmitsburg road, a distance of nearly a mile, under a terrific fire of artillery from the Union position. The Southern troops were confident of success, and, in fact, did pierce the Union lines, Gen Armistead, of the southern army being killed more than a hundred feet inside the Union intrenchments. The attack was, however, repulsed with great slaughter. Persons who visited the battlefield on the following day and who are still living, say that it was possible to walk upon the bodies of the Confederate dead from the stone wall at the bloody angle to the Emmitsburg road, a distance of 300 yards, without touching the ground.

The repulse terminated the three days fight, and Gen Lee on that night and the succeeding day (the Fourth of July) retreated to the Potomac.

Thus ended the Gettysburg campaign, but whether it ought to have so ended will be forever a debatable question. On the other hand, it is contended that Gen Meade should have followed up his success and annihilated Lee before he crossed the Potomac, specially as he had an entire corps (the Sixth) which had not been engaged; on the other, that he could not afford to run the risk of another engagement in view of the fact that European recognition of the Confederate government was at that time imminent, and the victory already gained had defeated the hopes of the government at Richmond in that respect.

BATTLE NOT DECISIVE

The claim that Gettysburg was the decisive battle of the war is erroneous. It was decisive only in transferring the theatre of war thereafter to Southern soil, and compelling European respect for the federal government and its inherent power to protect the integrity of the Union of States, for though up to and including Gettysburg the Union losses in battle against Lee's army had reached the almost unprecedented number of 90,000 killed and wounded, of which Gettysburg contributed 17,567, there were 111,000 killed and wounded subsequently in the same army before Lee surrendered at Appomattox.

Yet Gettysburg will always be regarded as the field where American prowess and manhood, audacity and tenacity, good leadership and self reliance marked an epoch which has earned for our soldiery the plaudits of the civilized world.

The lines of battle of the three days fighting have been distinctly marked by the government by the laying out of smooth roadways, and monuments of artistic merit and great variety have been erected to mark the fighting line of every regiment and battery engaged in the Union army, while individual monuments in granite and bronze perpetuate the memory of the skill and patriotism of Gens Meade, Reynolds, Hancock, Buford, Slocum, Warren and Vincent.

THE NATIONAL CEMETERY

The simple grandeur of the graveyard in which are interred the remains of 3,5[illegible] Union soldiers who fell in this memorable battle and whose bodies were not removed by their friends and relatives makes it perhaps the most attractive spot at Gettysburg.

A few days after the battle Gov Andrew G Curtin of Pennsylvania, visited the field to care for the wounded and to superintend the disposition of the bodies of those who were slain, and for this purpose he appointed Hon David Wills, of Gettysburg as the special agent of the commonwealth. The Governor put himself into communication with the Governors of the other loyal States and secured their hearty co-operation in the establishment of a national cemetery. Seventeen acres of land adjoining the village cemetery and at the very apex of the line of battle held by the Union troops, were purchased by the State of Pennsylvania, and the total cost of the cemetery, including the head stones and the national monument, amounted to $68,500.

Of the 3,5[illegible] graves 979 are marked "unknown," there being no means of identification when the bodies were exhumed from their temporary resting places. Many of these bodies have been recovered years after the conflict took place, even so late as the present year a trench having been discovered within the Union line containing seventeen skeletons buried side by side.

LINCOLN'S GREAT SPEECH

It was on this hallowed spot four months after the battle that President Abraham Lincoln, at the dedicatory ceremonies made the immortal speech which will forever be esteemed an English classic. The Hon Edward Everett was the orator of the occasion, but he was known to have said in after years that his speech was already forgotten, but that Lincoln's remarks would live forever.

The thought of preserving and protecting the battlefield of Gettysburg as "an expressive memorial of the heroic valor and signal triumph of our army" originated with Hon David McConaughy, a resident of the town and a witness of the entire conflict, who at that time represented his senatorial district in the Legislature of Pennsylvania.

STATE APPROPRIATIONS

Up to the present time the following appropriations have been made by the several States and expended upon the field:

Maine $3[illegible],300—11 regiments and 3 batteries
New Hampshire, $4,500—3 regiments and 1 battery
Vermont $17,953—11 regiments
Massachusetts $30,000—19 regiments and 4 batteries
Rhode Island $3,400—1 regiment and 5 batteries
Connecticut $5,[illegible]00—5 regiments and 3 batteries
New York, $224,825—[illegible] regiments and 15 batteries
New Jersey $11,255—13 regiments and 2 batteries
Pennsylvania, $39[illegible],[illegible]77—68 regiments and [illegible] batteries
Delaware $2,[illegible]00—2 regiments
Maryland $6,000—3 regiments and 1 battery
West Virginia $5,[illegible]—3 regiments and 1 battery
Ohio $10,000—15 regiments and [illegible] batteries
Indiana $4,000—6 regiments
Illinois $6,000—3 regiments
Michigan $10,250—11 regiments and 1 battery
Wisconsin $[illegible],000—6 regiments
Minnesota $20,212—1 regiment

No appropriation has yet been made by Congress to erect monuments to the fallen regulars, though their positions are carefully marked by metal tablets.

Up to the spring of 1895 the field had been in charge of the Battlefield Association, but on February 11 of that year the Congress of the United States passed an act making it a national park. Under this act the Federal Government not only assumed jurisdiction over the field but acquired all the property of this association (about 800 acres). At the last session the appropriation for new roads now [illegible] property and maintenance was increased from $5[illegible],000 to $75,000.

We do not indulge in deceptive advertising nor do we employ brass bands to attract the attention of prospective customers, but rely, rather, on the fact that the statements here made are bona fide. Our already large and increasing trade will not permit us to misrepresent, in any particular, the goods we sell. Our word we offer as our bond, and what we say we are prepared to prove by asking you to carefully

NOTE THESE PRICES.

Men's Suits.
$2 25 We will sell you a Suit for $2 25 that can't be bought elsewhere for less than $4 00
$1 25 Will buy a Suit that is really worth $6; in fact they ask $6 elsewhere for one as good
$6 00 Six dollars is no money for the Suit we offer at $6. This Suit is better of course, but both are real bargains
$7 00 Ah! Here is a bargain. To duplicate this Suit elsewhere, $10 00 would be required

Men's Black Suits.
You'd believe us when we say this is the greatest Black Goods Store in the County, if you knew how many we sell on a busy day. We've had some busy days this Fall too.
You can bank on
Saving Two To Five Dollars
on each Suit at these prices
$7 50, $9 00, $10 50, $12 00
These are honest values—the kind it pays to buy—we don't handle the so-called cheap clothing, but we have, in this offer, as in the rest, Economical Clothing.

Men's Pants.
Men's pants, in Cheviot, Hair Lined and Worsteds, from 6[illegible]c to $5 00

Boy's and Children's Suits.
Manly Clothes for the Little Fellow. Possessing nobbiness and fashion along with all the stability of wear that was ever worked into the boys' clothing. Mothers recognize this, boys respect it. If the youngster is a terror on his clothes, watch how quick he feels that sense of dignity that comes with being well dressed; it grows on him. The economical side of this offering is shown in these prices: $1 25, $2 00 and $2 50.
Children's Vestee Suits. We desire, particularly, to call your attention to this offering, to be had at no other establishment in this locality.
Children's Vestee Suits, made in various styles—some with Silk Vests—Others with vests of same goods prettily trimmed. This line is a praise winner. All who see them express astonishment on noting the smallness of the prices: $3 00, $3 50, $4 50 and $5 00.

Men's Overcoats.
We can give you a fine Overcoat, good enough for any one to knock about or dress, for $2 25. A still better one for $3 50, and a first class one for $5 00.
Fine Covert Top Coats. What a smart coat it is. The cloth is a fine Covert in one of the new shades, cuff full inside, good enough to turn, face out and wear. There's a silk velvet collar, a shade darker than the covert, most certainly worth $12 00. A gem at $[illegible] 00.
Finer Grades. Such as Blue and Black Beavers, Oxford and English Whip cords. They have the set and look of fine Custom made garments, are deeply French faced and lined all through with the best Italian cloth lining. They are the very latest and most up to date offering, and we know that coats of this quality have never been sold in this County or elsewhere at the prices we here quote: $6 50, $8, $10, $12 50 and $1[illegible].

Shoes.
Men's, Boys', Ladies' and Children's Shoes at astonishingly low prices.

Our line of Neckwear, Collars, Cuffs and Umbrellas cannot be surpassed. Trunks we have in endless variety, also Satchels, Telescopes and Dress Suit Cases, all at wonderfully low prices. Our line of Gum Coats and Mackintoshes is unequaled in this locality.
